Today the Church's liturgy invites us into what we know as Ordinary Time. At first hearing, that can sound a little flat. Ordinary. Routine. Nothing special. And yet we might reasonably ask: how can life be "ordinary" when we are still carrying in our hearts what we have just celebrated at Christmas? Only days ago, we rejoiced in the mystery of God-with-us: The Word made flesh, born among us, sharing our human life. We celebrated angels and shepherds, the wonder of the Magi, and the astonishing truth that God has entered our history in a new and permanent way. Nothing about that is ordinary.

Perhaps Ordinary Time does not mean "unimportant" or "uninspiring", but rather the time in which the extraordinary gift of Christ is lived out in ordinary days. The crib may be packed away, the carols may fade, but the presence of Christ does not fade. Instead, it seeks expression in daily life: in how we speak to one another, how we forgive, how we notice, and respond, to those who are struggling, how we live our faith quietly and faithfully.

In the Gospel today, John the Baptist points to Jesus and says, "Look, there is the Lamb of God." It is a simple sentence, spoken in an ordinary setting, yet it reveals everything. John does not draw attention to himself; instead, he directs our gaze outward, away from the dramatic and towards the quietly profound. He recognises Jesus not by signs and wonders, but by attentiveness, faith, and a heart tuned to God's action. That same attentiveness is asked of us: to notice Christ in small gestures of kindness, in patience tested, in love quietly given and received. Ordinary Time, then, becomes a sacred school of awareness, where we learn that God is at work not only in great moments, but in the faithful living of each day.

'THAT ALL MAY BE ONE'

Starting today, Sunday 18th January, and continuing until Sunday 25th January, feast of the Conversion of St Paul, churches everywhere are marking the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. Please keep this intention in your prayers in the coming days.

the coming year, please draw their attention to this notice.
